

5. Surrey

Births

- 5.1 The forecast model has been revised so that all births are used rather than only those in the areas of the schools. Births fell significantly from 1997 to reach a low point in 2001 followed by a significant increase in births. Births increased by over 1700 from 2001 to 2007, an increase of over 16%.
- 5.2 Births are projected to increase based on Office for National Statistics population estimates and projected fertility rates. This is consistent with additional housing built to meet government targets in the South east Plan. This increase in births will lead to a continuously increasing number of children starting school for the foreseeable future.

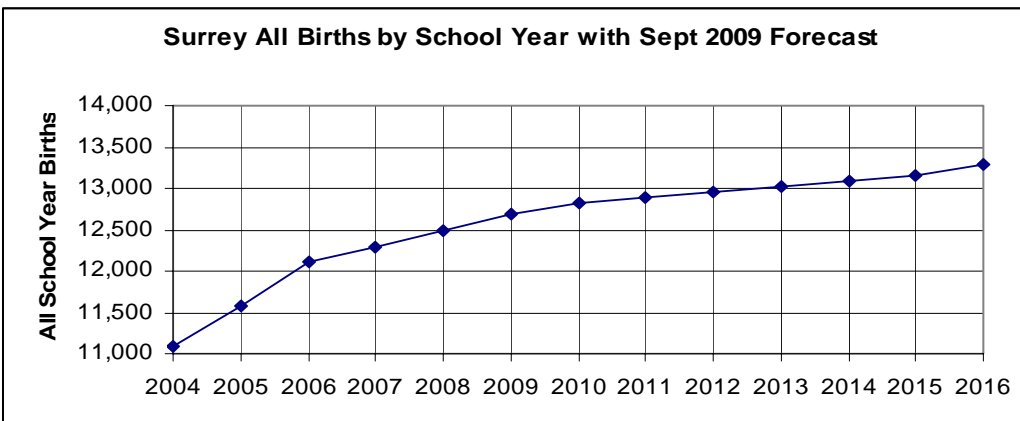

All actual births to 2007 and then projected using fertility trends and ONS female population projections

Comparison with the November 2008 birth forecasts

School Year	2007
Surrey - All Births 2008 Forecast	12,101
Surrey - All Births Actual	12,286
Difference from 2008 Forecast	185
% difference	1.5

- 5.3 In November 2008 Surrey calendar births were only available up to 2008, which means school years are up to 2007 when converted. The forecast was accurate to 1.5%, underestimating future births. The forecast model is being refined to improve accuracy.

September 2009 applications for primary places

- 5.4 Across Surrey in many planning areas the number of applications for primary places has been greater than the number of places available. There has been additional demand for places above the forecast numbers in several areas. Some of this may be attributable to the current recession.
- 5.5 The Independent Schools Council (ISC) indicated that the last recession which started in 1991 affected the number of pupils in independent schools, with a drop in numbers of 2.4%. This current recession appears to be deeper and has had a greater effect on the financial sector. Applications for Reception (YR) places for September 2009 have been significantly in excess of the forecast demand in several areas. A significant increase in demand for secondary places is expected to occur as the effects of the recession become more pronounced.
